Welcome to the first Two-Year College English Association National Conference. The purpose of this conference is to bring together TYCA members and professional allies from across the country for opportunities to learn from each other, network, and work together on issues that face two-year college English professionals and their students.

Welcome from the TYCA 2019 Conference Chair

The Two-Year College English Association looks forward to welcoming you at TYCA’s inaugural national conference in Pittsburgh in connection with CCCC 2019. The March 13 conference will bring together teacher-scholars from across the country to address issues related to teaching English in the first two years and working at two-year and other open-access institutions.

A downloadable copy of the conference program with an overview of TYCA resources is available through the conference website.

I invite you to attend the opening session from 8:00 to 9:15, “Starting the Conversation: Teacher-Scholar Activism and Access to Higher Education.” After the TYCA Chair’s addresses from Cheryl Hogue Smith and Jeff Andelora, attendees will review and respond to recent events and initiatives that affect the work of two-year college English teachers and students at open-access institutions. The opening will provide you with an opportunity to participate in an interactive discussion to identify national priorities for teacher-scholar activism at two-year colleges and other open-access institutions. After the conference, you will receive an opportunity to contribute to a document that will record ideas and suggestions for coordinating the efforts of TYCA members at the national level based on attendees’ experiences at the conference.

After the opening session, attendees will participate in five different sessions of morning and afternoon panel presentations, workshops, roundtable discussions, and interactive poster presentations. The presentations offer a rich array of topics that represent diverse experiences of TYCA members and others who teach English in the first two college years. Conference attendees will also have the option to attend sessions in the Council on Basic Writing (CBW) annual workshop. A complete list of session options with links to descriptions is available in the online conference program.

The conference luncheon from 12:15 to 1:45 will include the TYCA program awards and a keynote address from award-winning author Kiese Laymon. The luncheon requires a separate registration and fee through the CCCC registration site.

At the end of the conference, attendees will have the option to attend one of three activities: a post-conference action planning discussion, the annual CCCC Norton party, or an organized small group dinner out on the town at a Pittsburgh restaurant. Sign up sheets for the small group dinners will be available at the opening session and luncheon.

If you have any questions about the conference, please contact me at joanne.giordano@slcc.edu.

Special Conference Events

Opening Session: 8:00 to 9:30 am
Starting the Conversation: Teacher-Scholar Activism and Access to Higher Education
In the opening session, conference attendees will hear messages from Cheryl Hogue Smith and Jeff Andelora, the current and past TYCA Chairs. After a brief overview of national initiatives that affect the work of two-year college English teachers and their students, attendees will participate in an interactive discussion to identify national priorities for teacher-scholar activism at two-year colleges and other open-access institutions. Summaries of the discussion will be distributed through the TYCA listserv and Teaching English in the Two-year College.

Luncheon and Keynote Address
The luncheon will include the annual TYCA awards, messages from sponsoring publishers, and a keynote address from Kiese Laymon, Ottilie Schillig Professor of English and Creative Writing at the University of Mississippi. Laymon is also the author of the memoir Heavy, which received the 2019 Andrew Carnegie Medal in Nonfiction. NOTE: The luncheon with the keynote address requires a separate registration and fee through the CCCC convention registration site. Kiese Laymon will sign books immediately after the luncheon.

Council on Basic Writing Workshop Sessions
Conference attendees are invited to attend sessions at the Council on Basic Writing workshop sessions in Room 321 at no additional cost. CBW sessions are included on page 5 and in the breakout session schedule.

Evening Activities
Conference attendees will have three options for interacting with TYCA members and participating in continuing conversations from the conference:

1. Teacher-Scholar-Activist Conference Wrap-Up Discussion (6:00 pm to 7:00 pm)
   Join conference attendees in Spirit of Pittsburgh Ballroom B for a facilitated discussion on ways to take action after the conference, along with an opportunity to make connections with colleagues for follow-up projects (research, conference presentations, advocacy work, community outreach, service to the profession, etc.).

2. Dinner Groups (6:00 pm to ???)
   Attend a small group dinner on the town at a Pittsburgh restaurant. Sign up at the opening session or at the luncheon.

3. Norton CCCC Party (5:30 pm to 7:30 pm at the Westin)
   As a sponsor of the conference, Norton has invited TYCA Conference attendees to attend their annual CCCC party. Pick up an invitation at the opening session or at the luncheon.

COMPOSITION PROGRAMS AND WRITING

Outstanding Program Award
North Central Michigan College, Petoskey
“Accelerated Learning and Writing”
Program Coordinators: Jami Blaauw-Hara and Mark Blaauw-Hara

North Central Michigan College’s Accelerated Learning and Writing Program consists of one Accelerated Learning Program developmental course, two first-year composition courses, and an early writing-in-the-disciplines project. Our courses reflect the CWPA Outcomes (3.0) and integrate six key threshold concepts as guiding principles. The curriculum draws from writing-about-writing and teaching-for-transfer scholarship, stressing metacognition and students’ development of personal theories of writing.

Outstanding Program Award
Salt Lake Community College, UT
“Online + at SLCC”
Program Coordinator: Brittany Stephenson and Stephen Ruffus

The Online + program supports instruction in online sections of our general education writing courses: English 1010 and 2010. Online + is an innovative teaching model that leverages the strongest elements of both online and face-to-face learning. This model capitalizes on flexible online discussions and assignments combined with physical and digital meeting spaces to anchor student learning.

Honorable Mention
Southwestern Illinois College, Belleville, IL
“Placement Reform through Rhetorical Analysis”
Program Coordinators: Braford Nadziejko and Nicole Hancock

To discontinue use of commercial placement and meet the constraints of placement, the English Department at SWIC created a rhetorically-based placement exam and tested it in their classes for two years with some success. The new exam, while still indirect assessment, covers a different writing construct, one that allows for a shift in placement for misplaced lowest-level Basic Writing students.
Two-Year College English Association Resources

About the Two-Year College English Association (TYCA)
TYCA unites teachers committed to the teaching and study of English in the two-year college, to advancing the profession, and to providing a national voice for the two-year college in postsecondary education.

How to Join TYCA
Membership in the Two-Year College English Association is open only to members of the National Council of Teachers of English. To become a member of TYCA, go to the NCTE online store website or call NCTE customer service at 877-369-6283. TYCA members receive an annual subscription to Teaching English in the Two-Year College (TETYC).

TYCA Regional Associations
Membership in one of the seven TYCA regional associations is separate from membership in the TYCA national organization, and does not require membership in the TYCA national organization or NCTE. The registration process for a TYCA regional conference typically includes an option to become a member of the regional association, but the membership process and benefits differ across the regions.

Write for Teaching English in the Two-Year College

Consider translating your TYCA National Conference presentation into an article for Teaching English in the Two-Year College (TETYC). TETYC publishes articles for two-year college English teachers and those teaching the first two years of English in four-year institutions. Members of the TYCA national organization receive a subscription with their annual membership. The journal seeks articles (4,000–7,000 words) in all areas of composition (basic, first-year, and advanced); business, technical, and creative writing; and the teaching of literature in the first two college years. TETYC also publish articles on topics such as program and curriculum development, assessment, technology and online learning, writing program administration, developmental education in writing and reading, speech, writing centers in two-year colleges, journalism, reading, ESL, and other areas of professional concern.

Also consider submitting to one of the two special issues with upcoming deadlines:

- Special issue on dual credit programs and courses (April 1)
- Special issue on Guided Pathways (September 1)

TETYC also publishes several regular features:

- Instructional Notes are short articles describing successful classroom approaches, 1,200–4,000 words (see guidelines for writing Instructional Notes);
- Reviews of books, software, and other nonprint materials (see guidelines for book and media reviewers below)
- What Works for Me provides brief descriptions of successful classroom activities, 200–750 words.
- Review essays are 2,000–3,000 words and offer a synthesis of recently published works on a common topic or theme. Aimed at the busy teacher-scholar, review essays should indicate how the works included (at least three books, articles, web publications, or other types of professional resources) are interconnected and speak to a shared professional concern. See more information in the guidelines for book and media reviewers.
- Symposia aim to bring together diverse voices on a common topic of interest to two-year college English teachers and may be from 2,000 to 4,000 words. Sample topics might be reflections on white papers or position statements from NCTE, TYCA, or CCCC; commentary on trends in the field; or responses to recent studies, research pieces, or policy reports. Writers interested in contributing a Symposium piece should submit a proposal through Editorial Manager that includes the suggested topic, names and short background on contributing writers, and a brief summary of the perspectives that the piece will offer.
- Personal Essay: a manuscript of any length that describes or reflects on a teacher’s experiences, either a career or a class period.
