NCTE Assembly Benefits

1. Connection to a national network of professionals working to improve the teaching of English language arts.
2. Representation on the NCTE Board of Directors and publication of assembly annual reports in the NCTE Annual Reports document.
3. Information on NCTE through the NCTE press releases and other announcements, and the NCTE Web site.
4. Membership recruitment through the NCTE Web site links to assembly membership information and to the assembly's Web site (if there is one), and the possibility of NCTE sending a message on the assembly's behalf to NCTE members with the same interests as those of the assembly (if it's possible to identify those members) or in the geographic region of an annual conference.
5. Consulting services from NCTE staff on assembly projects, such as conference planning, membership recruitment, and involvement of people of color.

NOTE: In addition assemblies receive specific benefits at the NCTE convention and, possibly, other NCTE meetings. These benefits are based fundamentally on assembly size, linking Council services to the number of people served and encouraging assemblies to increase their membership in order to effect a corresponding increase in services.
